

SUPPORTED BY GREAT MINDS

Comprehension Builds Step by Step

Words

Vocabulary Matters. If students don't understand key words, the meaning of the text starts to fall apart.

Sentences

Syntax and vocabulary both matter. Readers have to connect words together and understand how they work in a sentence.

Passages

Coherence and meaning start to build. Now readers begin connecting ideas across sentences.

Articles

Knowledge starts playing a bigger role. Readers follow ideas across multiple paragraphs and sections of text.

Books

Knowledge makes comprehension easier. Now readers connect ideas across chapters and build deeper understanding of a topic.